

Nox .

November 13, 2008 - November 4, 2021

Nox was loved by 3 generations of my family and his fan club. He was constant companion to me and enjoyed long taking walks, playing ball, and squeaking his toys. He battled many illnesses including cancer, diabetes, and arthritis. He passed this November 4th in the comfort of his home with his family.

“ I met Nox when he was just a puppy made of nothing but two big floppy ears and 4 long clumsy legs. Even then he was one of the sweetest, smartest, and most engaging animals that I had ever met. We bonded in the back seat of a car while Emily and I were on our way to get ice cream when we were all considerably younger. Over the years I have been fortunate enough to see him grow and mature. Whenever I returned to Georgia one of the things that I looked forward to most was seeing and hearing Nox in the window near the front door as he welcomed me back. I will always treasure our time in the backyard throwing around his favorite collection of squeaky balls, the long walks with Carl and Emily around the neighborhood and through the wooded paths near the horse park, and later the stories of Nox anticipating the surprise shipments of toys I sent when I could - especially cherishing the videos Carl sent me of Nox carefully selecting the best toy of the bunch to play with - saving the rest for later. The time we get to spend with family members like Nox is never enough, but the impermanence of these things makes them even more special. Wherever he is now is certainly reserved for only the goodest of boys. RIP Nox - a king among dogs.

“ Nox was the best dog in the world. He will be deeply missed by his friends and family, whose lives he filled with joy and companionship for 13 years. While the loss of such a wonderful friend is keenly felt, we'll treasure his memory forever.

“ Nox was a very good dog, and the best boy. He was also a friend and a monster to the squeaky toys and the squirrels, rightfully so. I miss him very much, and hope he he rests in the most peaceful of doggy heavens.
